LLOYD GEORGE

Of three great men, Wilson, Clemenceau and Lloyd George upon whom the eyes of the world were turned in 1919, Lloyd George alone remains in his place of power. In December he completes his fifth year as prime minister of England. That he has remained in the favor of his people during one of the most unsettled periods of history is proof of his ability as a diplomat, but the fact that during these years there has been a steady growth of his personal ascendancy in the Commons is even more remarkable. He stands today at the head of one of the most powerful coalitions in British history.

At the beginning of the World War he was just beginning to advocate his liberal land reforms in England which aimed to place the heavier taxes on the landlord. But, with the outbreak of the war he laid aside the personal interests in England, and threw himself into a greater cause, the cause of humanity. A man of magnetic personality, he has been able to sway Parliament as few men in history have done. The objective force of his oratory in debate has aided him in his extraordinary career. He possesses one of the greatest gifts of generalship—He knows when to attack and when to retreat. His career has not left him without enemies, but he has that curious faculty of often turning his enemies into friends. One of his greatest gifts is his gift of humor, which no doubt has helped him maintain his mental poise during the strenuous years of his career.

As a prime minister of England he will undoubtedly take his place in history as the most remarkable prime minister since the elder Pitt. As a statesman who held high office during and following the war, his name will be written on the pages of history as a great international figure in world affairs.

Still is found in haystack," says news item. Truly, 'tis time to bring in the sheaves.

THE LEAGUE AND ARMENIA

The plight of Armenia and the present trend of affairs in that country once more draws the attention of the world to the near East. Since the advent of the Turks into Europe centuries ago, the Armenians have been under the control of that nation. Differing in religion, progressive in business when allowed, and possessing an intense national spirit, the Armenians have always maintained a losing struggle with their Turkish masters and have often been the victims of wholesale persecutions and massacres.

During the World War the Armenians joined with the Allied cause, co-operating at first with the Russians and later with the British against the Turks. The collapse of the Turkish resistance in 1918 left the Armenians temporarily without a master. In the post-bellum settlements little attention was paid to the Armenian problem and that country, unadministered, has gradually begun to fall again under the influence of Turkey. The re-assumption of Turkish control means the renewal of the Armenian massacres.

That Turkey is allowed to regain her power in Armenia is wholly the fault of the Allied powers, inasmuch as their foreign offices, the present Supreme Council of the Allies, have refused to surrender their power to the Assembly of the League of Nations. The activities of the Assembly of the League of Nations have shown that its representatives are more in touch with the modern problems and more capable of working out their solutions than are the chancelleries of the individual countries. The refusal of the Supreme Council of the Allies to surrender its power to the League Assembly makes it necessary for the Assembly to forward its recommendations to the Council as wishes.

In regard to the Armenian problem the Assembly did all that it could and in a resolution adopted by a unanimous vote has "urgently invited the Council of the League to insist before the Supreme Council upon the necessity of taking such measures in the next treaty between the Turks and the Allies as shall safeguard the future of Armenia, and in particular shall give to the Armenians a home entirely independent from Ottoman domination."

It remains to be seen whether in the foreign offices of the Allied countries the sense of fair play toward an ally can be sufficiently stimulated as to get them to abandon their disastrous nineteenth century policies of antagonism for one of co-operation in the benefit of suppressed nationalism and an oppressed people.

We wonder if it isn't monotonous for the poor old ghosts to walk in the same graveyards in the same way on the same night every year?

Those pessimists who declare our civilization is declining now have ample proof that we're retrograded to 1492. Oversee Voliva of Zion, Ill., has declared the earth is flat.

THE SCHOOL OF MINES

In 1870, because of the efforts of Ellis G. Evans of Rolla, a law was passed by the State Legislature providing for the establishment of a mining school in southern Missouri. In 1871 the School of Mines and Metallurgy was formally opened as a part of the University of Missouri. It was then housed in one building and its grounds were small.

The school—it will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary on November 4, and 5—has grown continually. It now has an enrollment of more than 500, consists of many buildings that house specialized departments, and has many acres of land used for practical purposes. Its first graduating class contained three members, its 1920 class, sixty-nine.

Because of its position and value the federal government has established a mining experiment station at the school, and the State has done likewise. Graduates are employed in mining work in all parts of the country and in foreign countries.

The Missouri School of Mines and Metallurgy at Rolla has filled an important position among the schools of the country. It has, and is, training men to enter into the field upon which much of the world's peace and comfort depends.

ON OTHER CAMPUSES

The national convention of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, will be held at Ames, Ia., from December 8 to 10, instead of November 10 to 12. The chapter at Ames is planning a program of speeches by some of the Nation's best known journalists. Theta Sigma Phi will co-operate with Sigma Delta Chi in entertaining the delegates to the convention.

The women students at Washington University are expected to do their part in the cheering at the football games as well as the men. A rally is being planned to teach the girls the school songs and yells and to instruct them in the principles of sportsmanlike cheering.

Mrs. Helmi Marr Kirby, for thirty-seven years connected with the University of Texas, and at the time of her death dean emerita, died recently. She was 84 years old. Until 1919 she was dean of women at that University.

"Rushing" among the sororities at the University of Denver began last week. For the first time, the sororities there have had deferred rushing. The entertainments for the new girls are to last two weeks, each sorority taking a day in turn for its entertainments.

The Iowa High School Press Association has been meeting at Grinnell College the last week, in co-operation with the journalistic department of the college.

County Court Allows Bills.
The Boone County Court was in session yesterday. Authorization of payment of bills made by the county was the main work of the day.

One application for the vacancy on the Text Book Commission, made by the resignation of George T. Porter, former County School Commissioner, was received. This vacancy will be filled by appointment by the County Court.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Klass Celebrate Forty-first Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Klass

Forty-one years ago Monday, Alexander Klass, then a merchant in Louisville, and Miss Julia Kahn of that city were married. They are now Mr. and Mrs. Klass of 204 South Eighth street, Columbia, Mo.

Coming to Columbia just three and one-half years after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Klass have resided here since. Their first home was on Cherry and Sixth streets, and after six years in that residence they moved to their present home where they have lived for thirty-two years.

The home is furnished in the same way, with the same pictures in the same places, as when Mr. and Mrs. Klass moved into it.

At the time of their coming to Columbia, Mr. and Mrs. Klass had two children, now Dr. O. C. Klass of Muskogee, Okla., and Edgar Klass, at present in the mercantile business in Kansas City.

Missouri Farmer Bearing Brunt of the Present Slump In Prices

Missouri farm prices at the middle of October showed more tendency to stabilize than for some months although some commodities were still slanting downwards according to the latest figures compiled by E. A. Logan, agricultural statistician for the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, and Jewell Mayes, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, through the State and Federal Cooperative Reporting Service.

Of the forty-three articles covered, fifteen advanced, fifteen remained the same, and thirteen declined while for twelve on the buying side the price of four rose, six remained the same and two declined. Among live stock all were down except milk cows. All grain declined except oats, corn having the greatest loss because of the new crop coming into the market. Timothy and clover hay made a slight gain and other hay lost. Dairy products advanced with seasonal changes, as did poultry commodities. Fruits declined somewhat but most vegetables advanced with the approach of winter, except sweet potatoes. Among grass and other seeds there were only slight changes from September. Miscellaneous items such as broom corn, tobacco, and wool remained nearly the same.

The farmer suffered declines in his most important articles of sale during the past thirty days without receiving a compensating lowering of prices on articles which he sought. The price of twelve articles purchased on which statistics were secured showed little if any declining tendencies, the rates being practically the same for the past two months.

The following table compares Missouri prices in October 1920 with September and October 1921:

U. S. LIKES RENTED HOUSES

54.3 Per Cent Are Renters Yet Trend Is Toward Ownership. More than half the families in the United States live in rented houses, according to a statement issued by the Bureau of Census. The number of families is placed at 24,351,678, of which 54.3 per cent rent their homes, 28.2 per cent own them and 17.5 per cent own a mortgaged interest. While the percentage of rented homes for the country shows a slight increase in the decade, yet in 45 of the 68 cities having 100,000 inhabitants, the trend is toward ownership.

BETWEEN COLUMNS

The yeast plant seems to be a power plant.

Lem Spivens says he has just bought Si Crump's grocery store and wishes to take this opportunity to announce the seating arrangement around the stove for this winter. Si will be allowed to keep his old place on the east where he can lean against the cheese counter; Uncle Jay Hicks will be allowed to occupy the cane bottomed chair south of the stove so he will be farthest from the door (precautions must be taken to prevent a return of Uncle Jay's rheumatism, for he loves to talk about it so that when he feels the first twinges he at once monopolizes the conversation); Jim Turpin and Pete Jarvis will take turn about sitting on the north side of the stove; Jake Hower will sit on the west counter near the scales; Lem himself will sit on the west side. Lem says that this will take up all the sitting room, but that there will be plenty of standing room. He warns all that he will be in no way responsible for sickness contracted in his store if the exciting cause be found to lie in the consumption of too many dried apples.

If there were just some way to make bandits work for their loot we feel sure that there would be fewer robberies.

WE WISH THERE WERE BUT ONE
There was an old farmer as I've heard tell,
Who went off to market, his grain for to sell.

He went off to market one autumn day,
And fell to dreaming along the way.

Along came a goblin whose name was Stout,
Who cut down the prices round about.

He cut down the prices clean as you please,
And the farmer this winter will shiver and sneeze.

Y. M. C. A. ACTIVITIES GROW

Rural Sociology and Chess Are Both Arousing Interest.

Among the new things introduced at the Y. M. C. A. are the chess tournaments and the class in rural sociology to be held at 8:30 o'clock every Sunday morning.

The class in rural sociology will make a specialty of the study of the country church and its relation to the community. The church as a social center will be taken up and discussed from all sides. "This class will serve to train leaders who will go back to lead their communities in the various activities of the church," said Mr. Talbot in commenting upon the new class to begin next Sunday morning. Prof. E. L. Morgan, of the rural sociology department, will conduct the class.

The first meeting of the checker and chess players was held at the Y. M. C. A. Monday night and plans for an organization were made. All students interested in chess and checkers are urged to attend the next meeting which is to be held at 7:30 o'clock next Wednesday evening. J. C. Goslin will meet Raymond P. Tipton in a match at the next meeting. Efforts are being made to match Dr. L. S. Baccus and W. I. Oliver, superintendent of schools, who are recognized as being among the best chess players in Missouri. If the material developed is good enough, tournaments with other universities will be arranged.

There will be a mixer for all the short course students next Saturday night. All students are invited.

TRADE WITH CANADA IS CUT Emergency Tariff Causes 50 Per Cent Reduction in Exports.

By United Press. (By Mail.)—The United States emergency tariff has seriously reduced trade between United States and Canada. The emergency tariff went into effect May 28. Between June 1 and August 31, exports to the United States amounted to $57,382,000, a decrease of over 50 per cent as compared with the same period last year. During the same time, imports from the United States were $132,016,000, a decrease of exactly 50 per cent over those of the same month a year ago.

If this rate of decrease continues, the total value of imports for the entire year will be $300,000,000 below that of last year and the value of exports probably will suffer in like manner. In the meantime, Canada is looking about for other markets. H. H. Stevens, newly appointed minister of trade and commerce, has opened at Vancouver an office for the promotion of trade with the Orient. Canada also is seeking to develop its trade with Mexico and Australia. Such development is facilitated by the government steamship lines.
